"After a continuous service with the electric industry for the past 18 years, I am beginning to think that maybe I should make way for younger men. More than anything else, I shall miss the many friends of the staff, but particularly those of Southside Virginia, who have been so loyal and cooperative in my 17 years of contact with them. It is a section of Virginia that I love and an area which has a bright future. Although retired from active duty, I shall continue to serve the Virginia Public Service Company in such ways as I can.
